

My name is Cody Clark, I am a senior at the University of Florida with a major in Food and Resource Economics. I grew up in Lakeland, Fl where I grew up on my families' cattle ranch and was involved in helping my family maintain our citrus groves where we grew Hamlin and Valencia oranges. During my time at UF I have become a member of the UF Collegiate Farm Bureau where I am an active member and have attended the Young Farmer and Ranchers Conference each year. I have also had the opportunity to become a brother of the Alpha Gamma Rho Fraternity and was elected as the Founder's Day coordinator last fall. I am also a member of the Tau Sigma Honors Society which requires UF transfer students to maintain a minimum of a 3.5 GPA, which I have exceeded during my time at UF. My expected graduation date is in the spring of 2020. Upon graduation, I would like to further my education by working towards a master's degree. Upon completion, my career goal is to work in the agriculture industry in Florida while also continuing to improve my herd of cattle and become increasingly involved in production agriculture.
